Come join the Bailliage of Greater Washington¹ at the Vineyards at Dodon in the bucolic Maryland countryside just 30 minutes east of Washington, D.C. near Annapolis to learn about and taste local wines, sample artisanal charcuterie, and enjoy a delicious luncheon.

Our afternoon includes a tour of the vineyard (weather-permitting) and winery and a vertical tasting of Dodon's chardonnay and South Slope wines. As a special treat, George Williams of The Ugly Pig is providing a "grazing table" of his house-made charcuterie. Our three-course luncheon will be catered by Erik Foxx of The Polished Foxx, which specializes in locally-sourced, relationship-driven ingredients.

If you've never thought of Maryland a wine-producing state, you're in for a pleasant surprise. Dodon co-owners Tom Croghan and Polly Pittman, note "Our vineyards are characterized by deep, well-drained soils, renamed the 'Dodon Series' in 2003 by the U.S. National Cooperative Soil Survey because of their distinctive characteristics. These soils are ideal for balanced, aromatic wines with a subtle minerality that is uncommon in most winemaking regions." Our tasting will let us discover Dodon's outstanding terroir in a range of their wines.

If you are interested in learning more about local wine and enjoying delicious food in a picturesque setting, this is the event for you!
